

Goshen Brewing Company Brewing good, doing good

We are Jesse, Amanda, and Carly Sensenig, and we're the founders and co-owners of Goshen Brewing Company (GBCo.), a family-friendly brewpub in downtown Goshen, located next to Center for Healing and Hope.

At GBCo., our core values include community, product, people, and environment. As Goshen College graduates trained as a social worker (Jesse) and a cognitive psychologist (Amanda), we've spent a lot of time thinking about the role people play in one another's lives, and our team at GBCo. works hard to build our business and set goals with these priorities in mind.

One of the ways we work to achieve these goals is to create a space where people of all backgrounds can come together. We provide year-round live music spanning the genres of blues, folk, Latin-Soul fusion, rock, jazz, and more through our free Wednesday Music Series. We offer bike-in movies and provide space on the lawn or around fire pits, and big community tables designed to facilitate interaction with others. We strive to be a place where everyone feels welcome.

Bike-in movie night at the brewery is always a fun experience!

We believe that a big part of doing good in one's community involves being good stewards of the earth, so our chef, Jesse Shoemaker, purchases local and organic ingredients whenever possible, creating relationships with the farmers and producers in our area. We opt for wind and solar power in our brewery, and we've also recently become certified as a Bicycle Friendly Business by the League of American Bicyclists.

The view you can't see. A solar array at GBCo. powers what was once a NIPSCO building at 315 W. Washington St.

As a neighbor to Center for Healing and Hope, we're excited to partner with them for the Festival of Hope again this year. We believe strongly in their mission, and the Festival of Hope provides a great setting for people from all backgrounds to enjoy the space at GBCo. and to build community together through live entertainment, activities for kids, and plenty of opportunities to get to know one another better. This year we've brewed a beer specifically to debut at the Festival of Hope. Come try Thirst Aid Kit, a quenching hoppy session beer with tropical notes. A portion of the proceeds will benefit Center for Healing and Hope.

Los Doble RR rocked the GBCo. stage at Festival of Hope in 2022. They will be back this year to close out the event.
